MEDIMON: PROLOGUE

Panacea Interactive, LLC

2026

1. EXT. MLB APOTHECA ISLES BRANCH - DAY

It is the day of the Bloom Trials at the MLB Apotheca Isles Branch. The ANNOUNCER's booming voice can be heard even from outside.

ANNOUNCER
It's neck and neck between The Surgeon and Carmella for the title of Medimaster!

OH! And another one of The Surgeon's Medimon is DOWN! Everyone's favorite contender may have met his match with Carmella's expert use of herbs on the field!

2. INT. ARENA - DAY

From within the arena, THE SURGEON adjusts his sun glasses, analyzing his situation.

THE SURGEON
Hmm... I miscalculated that one. No matter. My Car T-Cell's knife claws haven't dulled just yet!

CARMELLA meets his gaze from the other side of the field and gives a playful taunt.

CARMELLA
Hah! Whatcha think of that one? You might regret it if you underestimate the herbs we grow here on the isles!

The Announcer builds up excitement within the audience.

ANNOUNCER
This is definitely a Bloom Trial that will go down in the history of Medimasters! Will The Surgeon bloom into fame? Or... will he succumb to the stress and face defeat?

The Announcer then breaks down the playing field for the audience. He starts by commenting on the first round of battle for the second half of this match.

ANNOUNCER (CONT'D)
Let's see how the battlefield is playing out between our two finalists.

Thanks to our experts behind the scenes, our broadcast displays the current Medimon's Level, Type, HP, ATP, Stress, and status conditions, if any, directly to you in the audience!

So far, The Surgeon's Car T-Cell has managed to endure, but Carmella's Basophil doesn't even have a scratch on it!

Will The Surgeon attack? I'm sure the audience is curious to see his next move.

The Surgeon is deep in thought as he tries to maintain his calm under pressure and plan his next move.

THE SURGEON (VOICE OVER)
Come on, this is no time to lose my composure.

I'll have to risk the low accuracy to get a powerful move in. Heavy Slash should bring down that Basophil's health far enough!

The Surgeon uses Heavy Slash on Carmella's Basophil, reducing its health. Carmella's Basophil also manages to land a hit on The Surgeon's Car T-Cell. Carmella tries to encourage her Basophil.

CARMELLA
You're doing great Basophil! Let's keep this up!

The Announcer reflects on the previous move before narrating the second round in battle.

ANNOUNCER
Both Medimon are barely hangin' on!

Hmm, this would be a great time for The Surgeon to pull out his signature move to get the edge in battle!

For example, see that sparkle effect on Stinger Strike? That's the Car T-Cell's very own signature move, with a special effect that always lands a critical hit!

But is The Surgeon on the same wavelength?

The Surgeon thinks before deciding on his next move for this turn.

THE SURGEON (VOICE OVER)
Not bad. My Car T-Cell managed to land its attack. But I can't leave my next move up to chance...

Then, this next one's guaranteed to sting! Time to use Stinger Strike!

The Surgeon's Car T-Cell uses Stinger Strike, which takes down Carmella's Basophil. Her Basophil faints, then she brings out her Lungs. She reassures her Basophil before returning it inside its Medibox.

CARMELLA
It's ok, Basophil. You did your best. Lungs and I can take things from here!

The Announcer reflects on the previous round before commenting on the third round.

ANNOUNCER
And Carmella's Medimon is DOWN! Carmella decides to switch to Lungs to change the flow of battle.

Looking at the board, two Medimon remain on each side!

Yikes! But Carmella knows her type matchups. Her Lungs is a Fluids-types Medimon, which is strong against Immune-types like the Car

T-Cell.

The Surgeon is at a disadvantage here. Can he switch to another Medimon that's strong against Carmella's Lungs?

The Surgeon, easing into battle, isn't worried as he plans his next move.

THE SURGEON (VOICE OVER)
I accounted for this possibility. I'll switch to my Colon, a Gut-type Medimon that's strong against that Fluid-type.

The Surgeon uses his turn to switch out his Car T-Cell for his Colon. With type match-ups on his side, he barely takes any damage from Carmella's Lungs.

The next round begins as the Announcer ramps up on the excitement with the audience.

ANNOUNCER
The Surgeon brought out his Colon, a Gut-type Medimon! Of course he knows it's super effective to use biological types to his advantage!

And it looks like he's ready to land a massive gut punch on Carmella's Lungs!

Riding on the thrill of battle, The Surgeon lets out a laugh full of confidence.

THE SURGEON
Hah! As expected, that Fluids-type move barely left a scratch on my Colon.

The Surgeon then reflects on how he made it to the finals before deciding on his next move

THE SURGEON (VOICE OVER)
I wouldn't have made it this far if I didn't study up on my type matchups. That Carmella won't be able to make a dent now.

There's no time to waste. I'll use Noxious Wind, a Gut-type move that's super effective against Fluids-types!

The Surgeon uses Noxious Wind, dealing massive damage to Carmella's Lungs. Her Lungs is left barely standing. But The Surgeon's Colon no longer has enough energy to land another hit. The Announcer notices all of this in the fifth round.

ANNOUNCER
WOWEE! Even I'd flinch like Carmella's Lungs after that devastating blow!

He's not called The Surgeon for nothing! Behind those sunglasses are plotting eyes... eyes that calculated the perfect move to deal loads of damage without giving his opponent the chance to retaliate!

His Colon is sure under a lot of Stress as it tries to keep this momentum going after such a move.

Oooooh, it's so close! Carmella's Lungs are almost finished!

But The Surgeon's Colon is completely depleted! It has no energy to fight back.

If this keeps up, it'd be a Struggle for his Colon to sacrifice its health to continue fighting. How long could it last?

I wonder... Is there anything in The Surgeon's bag that he can use?

The Surgeon, not shaken in the slightest, looks through his bag with the plan to use an item.

THE SURGEON (VOICE OVER)
Hmph, I don't leave things to chance. I've come prepared. I'll use an Avocado, which will restore my Colon's energy!

The Surgeon gives his Colon an Avocado to restore its energy. Carmella uses her turn to use Breath of Life, restoring some of her team's health. She then tries to encourage herself as the battle starts to favor The Surgeon.

CARMELLA
Phew, let's take a deep breath.
Everyone at home is rooting for me.
I've gotta give it my all!

The Surgeon already has his move at the ready during the sixth round, delivering his signature line.

THE SURGEON (VOICE OVER)
Carmella may have gone on the defensive and healed her Medimon, but I'll cut through her defenses
now that my Colon has enough energy!

I'll use another super effective move to finish the Lungs off!
Noxious Wind!

The Surgeon uses Noxious Wind to knock out Carmella's Lungs. Her Lungs faints, and Carmella brings out her last Medidmon, a Preeclampsia. She then reassures her already stressed Preeclampsia.

CARMELLA
Looks like it's just you and me now, Preeclampsia. I need to take care of you first.

ANNOUNCER
And the Lungs are OUT! Carmella only has one Medimon left, her Preeclampsia.

The Surgeon's Colon then transforms into a Ulcerative Colitis due to its high stress. The Announcer doesn't miss a beat commenting on this.

ANNOUNCER (CONT'D)
But is the Colon's sudden transformation into an Ulcerative Colitis part of The Surgeon's calculations?
Oh, I've seen this many times throughout the trials: A healthy Medimon accumulating Stress; the longer it stays on the field...

...the closer it gets to its breaking point where it transforms into its diseased state!

A Medimon's diseased state can have new typing and moves, so our experts have updated the broadcast accordingly.

But this state isn't permanent! If The Surgeon has the right treatment, he can cure it and turn his Ulcerative Colitis back into a Colon.

Does The Surgeon have the right treatment in his bag?

The Surgeon searches through his bag once more during this seventh round.

THE SURGEON (VOICE OVER)
For my plan to work, I need to turn my Ulcerative Colitis back into a Colon. I have a spare infliximab I can use to cure it.

The Surgeon tries to throw the infliximab at his Ulcerative Colitis. But his hand slips and throws off his aim. The infliximab accidentally hits Carmella's Preeclampsia instead. Due to its already high stress, the Preeclampsia self-destructs. The Announcer is caught by surprise as he comments on this.

FADE TO BLACK

ANNOUNCER
WHAT IS THIS?! The Surgeon's infliximab hits the already highly stressed Preeclampsia, causing it to self-destruct!

It's a recipe for disaster if you give your diseased Medimon the wrong treatment and it's already stressed. Stress that high will often cause a self-destruct in diseased Medimon!

Carmella collapses from anaphylactic shock. The Announcer and the rest of the audience realize she was also hit by the infliximab.

ANNOUNCER (CONT'D)
WAIT! Carmella has also been hit with the infliximab and seems to be in anaphylactic shock!

Someone, QUICK! CALL AN AMBULANCE!

AUDIENCE MEMBER
Is... Is she d-dead? She's not moving...

FADE IN:

Carmella is rushed into an ambulance as The Surgeon steps off to the side, completely devastated. The Announcer fills the silence for the audience.

ANNOUNCER
T-This is completely unprecedented

This has never happened before in the Meditrials! As such, it's been left up to our MLB Directors to judge the results.
A suffocating silence has fallen over the stadium as we all wait for the final verdict.

But one question is loud and clear in everyone's mind: WHO, if anyone, will become our next Medimaster?

A Medimaster is vital in a world where we live alongside Medimon. Someone who has mastered not only combat strategies, but the traits and treatments tied to each Medimon.

As you know, the MLB Directors employ the Medimasters and oversee these trials, so they're taking this decision very seriously.

I... I can't even imagine being in their shoes right now.

Wait... Mhm... you sure? Then, I'll make the announcement.

Our MLB Directors have come to a decision.

Ahem. Carmella is unfortunately no longer able to compete, making a rematch impossible. So, the directors looked carefully into the last round.

When Carmella's last Medimon was defeated, The Surgeon still had two Medimon left standing. With this, the directors concluded that the battle was in his favor until the unexpected incident.

And taking The Surgeon's proven track record in the previous trials into consideration...

3. INT. PODIUM - DAY

The Surgeon is guided to the podium and stands there as he is presented with the Medimaster badge. He has a conflicted look on his face as the Announcer declares his win.

ANNOUNCER
The Surgeon has been declared as the WINNER of today's Bloom Trial! Congratulations to our new Medimaster!

The Surgeon will surely go down in history for this legendary win!

The Announcer then directly addresses The Surgeon to get the new Medimaster's comments.

ANNOUNCER (CONT'D)
Now, I'm sure we're all waiting to hear from the man of the hour himself.

The Surgeon, you've been a crowd favorite as you swiftly made your way through the Meditrials with calculated precision.

You even managed to turn things around during the second half of this match without breaking a sweat!

How does it feel standing at the very peak of Medimon battles as a Medimaster?

The Surgeon remains silent. The scene then fast forwards to 18 years later, in the present.